Former IMB Missionary Publishes a Book
Beyond My Strength

Cumming, GA: Ronnie Fox and his family began 18 years as a missionary to Peru with the International Mission Board (IMB) in 1986. He served over three decades in various ministry roles before a stroke forced him into medical retirement. His latest book uses real life experiences as a framework for God given spiritual insights.

At age 16, he explains, "I prayed and Dad died anyway." He tells about falling in love, recounts his feelings as gun shot wounds drenched him in a missionary colleague's blood, and few months later a missionary colleague collapsed from a heart attack before his eyes.

He uses a lifetime of experiences to explain spiritual insights. Although some of these insights were reveals in unique situations, the application is simple. They are not lofty principles reserved for the spiritual elite. Instead, anyone can apply them in their everyday situations.

Ronnie says, "I have learned the challenges in my life are not a proving ground for my faith. Instead, they are an opportunity for God to demonstrate his power."

In 2004 he started a new phase of ministry as a church planting consultant at the North American Mission Board. Before starting his missionary career, he enjoyed over seven years of service in local churches. A stroke altered the way he serves, but it did not stop him.
